

Spring Riddles

From brainpuzzles.games

1.

I am a season, a bouncy metal coil, and a place where fresh water bubbles out of the ground. What am I?

3.

You bury me alive in the dirt, and a few weeks later I come back to life as a flower. What am I?

5.

I only show up when the sun and the rain work together, and I wear seven colors at once. What am I?

7.

I open like a flower when the rain starts falling, but I am not a plant. I keep you dry, then I nap by the door. What am I?

9.

I hum from flower to flower all day, packing yellow dust on my legs, and my whole family works for a queen. What am I?

11.

Count the raindrops in this spring shower.

13.

Every time it rains, I sneak out of the soil and stretch out on the sidewalk. Early birds are my biggest fans. What am I?

2.

I fall all spring long, but I never get hurt. Flowers cheer every time I show up. What am I?

4.

Finish the famous spring saying: April showers bring...

6.

I spend weeks wrapped in a sleeping bag I made myself, and I wake up with wings. What am I?

8.

In the northern half of the world, spring officially begins in which month?

10.

I am a house built of twigs and mud, high up in a tree, with no door and no roof. Soon there will be singing inside me. What am I?

12.

I dance in the sky at the end of a long string, and a windy spring day is my favorite kind of day. What am I?

14.

Ø=Ü + Ø>þ°

15.

I started life as a swimmer with a tail. Then I grew legs, lost the tail, and learned to sing at the pond. What am I?

17.

Which comes FIRST in a frog's life?

19.

After the rain, I lie on the ground like a little mirror for the sky. Kids in rubber boots cannot resist me. What am I?

21.

You cannot see me, but in spring you can watch me fly kites, shake blossoms loose, and steal hats. What am I?

23.

I wear a bright yellow trumpet on my head, and I am one of the first flowers to announce that spring has arrived. What am I?

25.

I am invisible yellow dust that rides the spring breeze. Flowers love me, but noses sneeze at me. What am I?

27.

Ø=Ý5 + Ø=Ý

29.

I look like a long green snake sleeping in the garden, but squeeze my handle and I spit water. What am I?

16.

I pecked my way out of my round white house, and now I follow my mother everywhere, peeping. What am I?

18.

I am one of spring's first babies, I bounce around the meadow, and my coat becomes sweaters. What am I?

20.

Spring is baby animal season. What do you call a baby cow?

22.

What kind of flower grows right under your nose?

24.

In the old weather saying, March comes in like a lion and goes out like a...

26.

I wear a shiny red coat with black polka dots, and gardeners are always happy to see me. What am I?

28.

My red chest hops across the lawn in early spring, and people say I am the season's first messenger. What am I?

30.

One of these four flowers is different. Which one?

31.

Rain plus dirt equals me. Kids adore me, washing machines fear me. What am I?

33.

What do bees collect from spring flowers to make honey?

35.

We are twin boots that spend all winter bored in the closet, waiting for puddle season. What are we?

37.

What do you call a baby frog that still has its tail and lives in the water?

39.

I roar all Saturday morning, I eat grass but I am not a cow, and I leave stripes on the lawn. What am I?

41.

I carry my whole house on my back, I come out to glide across the sidewalk after every spring rain, and I leave a shiny silver trail behind me. What am I?

43.

I am a tight little green package sitting on a branch, and after a few warm spring days I will burst wide open into a flower. What am I?

45.

On the first really warm day of spring I spin in circles on the lawn, flinging water everywhere, and giggling kids in swimsuits chase me. What am I?

32.

I am a tiny green baby plant, poking my head out of the soil to check if winter is really over. What am I?

34.

When do monkeys fall from the sky?

36.

I sleep through the whole winter in a cozy den, and in spring I wake up grumpy and very, very hungry. What am I?

38.

For two weeks in spring I turn whole trees into pink popcorn, and then I snow petals all over the street. What am I?

40.

What kind of bow can never, ever be tied?

42.

Before the sun wakes up, I quietly cover the spring grass in tiny sparkling beads. By breakfast time I have completely vanished. What am I?

44.

I have a long curved spout and a handle, I drink my fill from the tap, and then I give the thirsty flowers a gentle indoor shower. What am I?

46.

I have long ears and a fluffy cotton tail, I hop through the spring meadow in big bounces, and I nibble the fresh green clover. What am I?

47.

I am a fuzzy yellow baby who waddles behind my mother down to the spring pond, and today I get to paddle in the water for the very first time. What am I?

49.

I am a small cup-shaped flower, sometimes purple and sometimes yellow, and I am brave enough to bloom while the last patches of snow are still melting. What am I?

51.

Hand me to the spring breeze or blow on me yourself, and my bright paper blades will spin round and round on top of my stick. What am I?

53.

After a warm spring rain I pop up overnight in the damp shady woods, standing quietly under my own little umbrella cap. What am I?

55.

I am a tiny bird that hovers in the air like a little helicopter, sipping sweet nectar from spring flowers while my wings buzz in a blur. What am I?

57.

I am a spring baby with long wobbly legs, yet within an hour of being born I can stand up and trot beside my mother across the field. What am I?

59.

I am a fuzzy spring baby, a close cousin of the duckling, and when I grow up I will fly north in a honking V. What am I?

48.

I rumble and flash across the spring sky and pour down heavy rain, but when I finally move along I leave the whole world smelling fresh and clean. What am I?

50.

I have a long wooden handle and a row of springy teeth, and in spring I comb across the yard to gather up old leaves and dead grass. What am I?

52.

I am a cheerful yellow weed that later turns into a soft white puff. Make a wish, give me a puff of breath, and my seeds float away on the wind. What am I?

54.

As spring arrives we fly north in a big noisy V shape, honking the whole way back to our summer home by the lake. What are we?

56.

Each spring day I stay up in the sky a little longer, I warm the cold soil, and I gently coax the sleepy seeds and buds to wake up. What am I?

58.

I wear a reddish coat sprinkled with white spots so I can hide in the tall spring meadow, and I hold very still while my mother grazes nearby. What am I?

60.

I am a pink spring baby with a curly little tail and a flat snout, and I love nothing more than rolling around in the fresh mud. What am I?

61.

Farmers call me a kid, but I am covered in fur instead of clothes, and I love to hop and clatter across the rocks. What am I?

63.

I am a little house made almost entirely of glass, and inside me flowers and vegetables enjoy warm summer weather even while it is still chilly outdoors. What am I?

65.

I am a small shovel that fits in one hand, and a gardener uses me to scoop out little holes for planting spring bulbs and seedlings. What am I?

67.

On a breezy spring afternoon a child dips a wand, blows gently, and sends dozens of us floating shiny and round across the yard until we pop. What are we?

69.

At winter's end people watch to see whether I climb out of my burrow and notice my own shadow, because folklore says I can hint at when spring will arrive. What am I?

71.

I share my name with the colored ring around the pupil of your eye, and I am also a tall spring flower with velvety purple petals. What am I?

73.

What is a scarecrow's favorite spring fruit to grow out in the garden?

62.

I am a fuzzy little creature that munches through leaves all spring long, and one day I will wrap myself up and change completely. What am I?

64.

I have one wheel at the front and two handles at the back, and each spring I carry heavy loads of soil and mulch around the garden for you. What am I?

66.

I am a shallow stone bowl on a stand in the garden, and on warm spring days birds flutter down to splash and cool off in me. What am I?

68.

I am a tall pole strung with long colorful ribbons, and at spring festivals children dance in circles around me, weaving the ribbons as they go. What am I?

70.

I am a leafy bush that bursts into clusters of tiny purple blossoms each spring, and my sweet perfume can fill a whole backyard. What am I?

72.

What do you call the kind of soggy spring day when it seems to be raining chickens and ducks?

74.

What do you call two young flowers that have been inseparable friends ever since they first sprouted?

75.

Which tall long-necked bird might you also spot lifting heavy steel beams high above a building site?

77.

Why is nearly everyone worn out and footsore by the time the first of April rolls around?

79.

Why did the gardener finally give up on the vegetable patch and quit?

81.

Millions of my three-leaf cousins carpet the spring lawn, but stumbling on just one of me is considered a rare stroke of luck. What am I?

83.

My name sounds like the coldest part of winter, yet I am actually a tiny white flower brave enough to bloom first, sometimes while snow still lingers. What am I?

85.

I am a springtime branch dotted with soft silvery buds that feel exactly like tiny kitten paws, even though I am only a plant. What am I?

87.

When the spring downpour is truly pouring, people say it is raining these two furry household pets. Which two are they?

89.

I am a small sky-blue flower with a curious name that sounds like a gentle little plea never to be left out of your memory. What am I?

76.

What does a bee say when it buzzes back to the hive after a long day working the spring flowers?

78.

What does a stylish rabbit reach for to keep its fur neat and tidy on a windy spring day?

80.

How do the bare trees quietly promise to make a fresh start every single spring?

82.

I am a little green three-leaf plant worn on the seventeenth of March, and I am the beloved symbol of Ireland. What am I?

84.

As spring warms the maple trees, I begin rising up from the roots, and if you patiently boil me down I turn into sweet golden syrup. What am I?

86.

Rabbits do not truly lay me, and yet every spring children search the whole yard hoping to find me hidden in bright cheerful colors. What am I?

88.

Which springtime flower shares its name with the famous ship that carried the Pilgrims across the ocean to America?

90.

A baby chick pushing out of its egg and a clever secret plan can both do this very same word in spring. What is the word?

91.

Grandparents tuck me away for a rainy day, while a bird tucks me under her feathered bottom up in the tree. What am I?

93.

People call a lively young person a spring _____, borrowing the name of a common farm bird. Fill in the blank.

95.

In spring we push our clocks in this direction and lose an hour of sleep, in a saying that rhymes neatly with fall back. What do we do?

92.

Gardeners say a flower should do this right where it is planted, and people borrow the same word to mean thriving wherever you happen to be. What is the word?

94.

I am the hard little case a caterpillar forms tight around itself in spring, and inside me a remarkable change takes place before a butterfly steps out. What am I?

96.

I am the one special spring day when daytime and nighttime stretch to nearly the same length, about twelve hours each. What am I?

Answer Key

Spring Riddles, from brainpuzzles.games

1. Spring.
2. Rain.
3. A seed.
4. May flowers. April showers bring May flowers. The rain does the watering for free.
5. A rainbow.
6. A butterfly.
7. An umbrella.
8. March
9. A bee.
10. A bird's nest.
11. Seven. Five drops in the middle band and two more falling lower down.
12. A kite.
13. A worm.
14. Dragonfly (dragon + fly).
15. A frog.
16. A chick.
17. Egg. Egg, then tadpole, then froglet, then frog. Spring ponds are full of the first stage.
18. A lamb.
19. A puddle.
20. A calf
21. The wind.
22. Tulips. Two lips.
23. A daffodil.
24. Lamb. In like a lion, out like a lamb: wild weather early in March, gentle weather by the end.
25. Pollen.
26. A ladybug.
27. Bluebell (blue + bell).
28. A robin.
29. A garden hose.
30. The third one. The third flower has only three petals. The rest have four.
31. Mud.
32. A sprout.
33. Nectar. Bees sip nectar and turn it into honey. Pollen hitches a ride and helps flowers make seeds.

34. During Ape-ril showers.
35. Rain boots.
36. A bear.
37. A tadpole
38. Cherry blossom.
39. A lawn mower.
40. A rainbow
41. A snail.
42. Dew.
43. A bud.
44. A watering can.
45. A sprinkler.
46. A rabbit.
47. A duckling.
48. A thunderstorm.
49. A crocus.
50. A rake.
51. A pinwheel.
52. A dandelion.
53. A mushroom.
54. Geese.
55. A hummingbird.
56. The sun.
57. A foal.
58. A fawn.
59. A gosling.
60. A piglet.
61. A baby goat.
62. A caterpillar.
63. A greenhouse.
64. A wheelbarrow.
65. A trowel.
66. A bird bath.
67. Bubbles.
68. A maypole.
69. A groundhog.
70. A lilac.

71. An iris.
72. Fowl weather.
73. Strawberries.
74. Best buds.
75. A crane.
76. Honey, I'm home.
77. They just finished a long March.
78. Hare spray.
79. The celery just was not high enough.
80. They turn over a new leaf.
81. A four-leaf clover.
82. A shamrock.
83. A snowdrop.
84. Sap.
85. A pussy willow.
86. An Easter egg.
87. Cats and dogs.
88. The Mayflower.
89. A forget-me-not.
90. Hatch.
91. A nest egg.
92. Bloom.
93. Chicken.
94. A chrysalis.
95. Spring forward.
96. The equinox.